A short madness, doomed to snatch up its enthusiastic victim for an exciting season, to end in renewed dullness and apathy. Overheated rooms, causing severe colds—over-exercise, bad companionship, occasional falls with serious injuries may, no doubt, with truth be alleged against this sport, as against almost every other. In-door exercise is not the best. One hour in the open air is worth a dozen behind closed doors with any form of amusement. Yet the great need of this generation—of American children—yes, and of American men and women, is some form of exercise which shall develop the body. The gospel of proper eating and drinking, with regular exercise, is the gospel for the day. The development of mind cannot go on without a corresponding development of the body. The fear of physical exertion is one of the most discouraging features of our national life. That nation which longest endures which is not afraid to boast of its powers of endurance, its love of the open air, and of all kinds of physical effort.

The love of sports is a new feature in our experience. While discouraging everything that will tend to injury of body or mind, it should be carefully fostered, and if possible, be directed into new and more useful channels.

Notes and Observations.

I have lately been amusing myself by investigating the ridiculous red tape and the extravagance of the British system of royalty. How often are one's ears offended by hearing some growling dyspeptic, who would not unregenerately enjoy paradise, declare his admiration for the English system of government. I commend the following figures to all the ingenuities who read the CITIZEN. Our President receives $50,000 salary, and many think that is about twice too much. I think it scarcely enough and the only change needed in Washington is to double the salaries of the high officials so as to bring them once more into proper relation to that of President. But to the Royal Family and their modest relations:

Queen	$1,925,000
Prince of Wales	200,000
Princess of Wales	50,000
Crown Prince of Prussia	40,000
Duke of Edinburgh	100,000
Princess Christ of Schleswig-Holstein	30,000
Princess Louise	30,000
Duke of Connaught	100,000
Duchess of Cambridge	30,000
Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz	15,000
Duke of Cambridge	60,000
Duchess of York	25,000
Duchess of Albany	30,000

Thus the Queen and her family draw from the national treasury the gross sum of over two million and a half dollars. But this is not all. The Duchy of Cornwall is one of the perquisites of the Prince of Wales, and its revenue netted him last year $325,000. In like manner the Duchy of Lancaster added to the Queen's income $220,000. The grand total thus paid the royal family by the British people reaches the enormous, not to say outrageous, sum of three million dollars. With an income like this from the people and the untold sums received from her private investments, what brazen effrontery to ask Parliament to pension some new continental nonentity or seaport unworthy to mate with any high-bred English man or woman.

The annuity of the Queen is not given her in a lump, but apportioned thus: Privy purse, $300,000; salaries of household, $350,000; expenses of household, $862,000; royal bounty, etc., $65,000; unappropriated, $40,000. According to law the sums appropriated for one object cannot be used for any of the others, and unexpended balances must be returned to the treasury. This rather takes the edge off the admiration we are wont to feel when we hear the Queen has given a thousand dollars to this charity and ten thousand to that. It is very easy to give away the money furnished by others, particularly when it must either be given away or given back. I need scarcely observe, however, that no balances are ever returned to the treasury. Six hundred and fifty thousand dollars seems like a good deal of money to expend in servants' wages, and it is not without interest that one turns to see what becomes of it in detail. It will soon be observed that the absurd prejudice which exists in this country against becoming household servants among certain classes does not prevail in England, where the upper ten thousand seek eagerly after positions such as grooms, ladies' maids, etc. The wages are pretty high to be sure and a careful scrutiny of the list seems to show that some person with half a dozen titles or so draws large pay for little work, while some poor creature does all the work for very little pay. When the radical party get a chance at their roll they will not be long in discharging all the ornamental servants with long names, and thereby save the nation nine-tenths, or perhaps ninety-nine one-hundredths of the household expense. Nay, it would not be too strange, if the occupant of the house were called upon to pay her or his own servants of the household. The names of the chief positions, their occupants and their salaries, are so significant that I venture to take the space to give them:

Lord Steward, Rt. Hon. Earl of Sydney,	$10,000
Treasurer of Household, Rt. Hon. Earl of Breadalbane	4,500
Comptroller of Household, Rt. Hon. Lord Kensington, M. P.	4,500
Master of Household, Maj. Gen. Sir J. C. Cowell, K. C. B.	5,700
Keeper of the Privy Purse and Private Secretary to Her Majesty, Gen. Rt. Hon. Sir H. F. P. P. P.	10,000
Lord Chamberlain, Earl of Kenmore, K. P.	10,000
Vice-Chamberlain, Rt. Hon. Lord Charles Bruce, M. P.	4,500

Much can be said for this amusement, and no doubt much can be witnessed against it. Like croquet, or tennis, it is, no doubt,

Comptroller of Accounts, Hon. Sir J. C. B. P. P. P.	5,000
Lord Chamberlain, Rt. Hon. Earl of Breadalbane	4,500
Comptroller of Household, Rt. Hon. Lord Kensington, M. P.	4,500
Master of Household, Maj. Gen. Sir J. C. Cowell, K. C. B.	5,700
Keeper of the Privy Purse and Private Secretary to Her Majesty, Gen. Rt. Hon. Sir H. F. P. P. P.	10,000
Lord Chamberlain, Earl of Kenmore, K. P.	10,000
Vice-Chamberlain, Rt. Hon. Lord Charles Bruce, M. P.	4,500
Comptroller of Accounts, Hon. Sir J. C. B. P. P. P.	5,000
Lord Chamberlain, Rt. Hon. Earl of Breadalbane	4,500
Comptroller of Household, Rt. Hon. Lord Kensington, M. P.	4,500
Master of Household, Maj. Gen. Sir J. C. Cowell, K. C. B.	5,700
Keeper of the Privy Purse and Private Secretary to Her Majesty, Gen. Rt. Hon. Sir H. F. P. P. P.	10,000
Lord Chamberlain, Earl of Kenmore, K. P.	10,000
Vice-Chamberlain, Rt. Hon. Lord Charles Bruce, M. P.	4,500

I have found much food for reflection in this list of officials of high order in Her Majesty's household, and I doubt not readers of the CITIZEN will also be interested in them.
